

HANDS OFF DON HEARN'S CABINS

They're not pretty but they're ours.

Over 60 years ago Don Hearn built six simple cabins on the NSW South Coast. They were built for surfers and artists as a place to escape the rat race. Even today, the only 'mod cons' are a toaster, a kettle, a stove and a bar fridge. No TVs. No wi-fi. No soaps on pillows.

Now the Government wants to bulldoze this iconic South Coast haven. It's one of the last places to offer affordable holidays for country people, city people, young families and groups of all kinds.
